THE BLUE BIRD.

BY WM. W. FOSDICK.

Gentle harbinger of Spring.
Bird of the heaven hae,
Bearing on thy piry wing Summer's softest blue,
Oh! welcome back thy ruddy breast,
And music breathing mouth—
Sweet herald! of the breezy West And of the spicy South.

Thou bright-hued conrier of the Sun! Old Winter hears thy strain.
And drawing up his snowy clonk,
Goes slowly down the plain; And in his track in robes of green,
The Spring comes dancing gay,
And April draws the curtain screen
That hides the blushing May.

Oh! we!come book awest messenger!
Thou hast a guilding chart.
The compass of thy heart.
Thou ridest in the sunshine's car,
Borne on the South wind's brenat,
Led by the ley polar star,
And evening's in the West.

Sweet envoy of the gentle Spring! Oh! b ing me tidings true, That I shall see a blossoming Upon life's tree anew: But if thou cans't not bring Love back, I prithec, b.rd, depart! For fairest skies will seem but black Without a Spring at heart!

JOHN RIGALL.

The Paily Journal. it is a girl, he will feel happy and look happy, but his happiness will be subdued, quiet and calm. When he arrives at his place of business, he will there proclaim the great event, and is not expected to notice any little jokes which may be perpetrated at his expense.

Diggs will return home at least six times during the first day. He will look at the child six times, and tickling its checks with his finger, will s'x times exclaim-"Oh, the dear weeny, becay little thing!" Diggs will take all orders to the Pharmacopolist, and the Pharmacopolist is expected to be unusually elated with the news. The Pharmacopolist will congratulate him in set term, and will ask how they are doing. Diggs will inform him that they are doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances, and will go a lit-tle into particulars, with which the Pharmacopolist will be highly delighted, and if an opportunity is offered, is expected to air his knowledge of the whole business.

In four weeks after the birth of the child. the Grand Mistress of the Household will vacate the premises. Diggs will then receive strict orders that he is not expected to go out after tea. The dear weeny, beeny little thing will always be sick after tea, and he must help his dear Emily to keep it quiet, and get it sound asleep. He must also hold himself in, readiness to get up at least six times every night. And during the time his only sleep is: cat naps he will be extensively in the catnip-trade—that article being found very necessary for the health of the dear weeny, beeny little thing. In about six months after the event, Diggs will have some experience in domestic life, and will find out that it has its duties and
